Report: Two-Day International Web Conference on

Literary Studies in the Coronavirus Terrain: Reading Peril, Environment and Normalcy

Ramniranjan Jhunjhunwala College of Arts, Science & Commerce; HSNB Board's Smt. Chandibai Himathmal Mansukhani College, Ulhasnagar and KET's V.G. Vaze College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Mumbai organised a two-day International Web Conference on "Literary Studies in the Coronavirus Terrain: Reading Peril, Environment and Normalcy" on 26th & 27th June 2020. The Academic Advisor of the conference was: The Board of Studies in English, University of Mumbai.

The aim of the web conference was to explore the tenets of the new literary studies in the present coronavirus terrain.

Prof. Ravindra Kulkarni, honourable Pro-Vice Chancellor, University of Mumbai, was the Chief Guest of the event.

The first day saw two plenary sessions. The first session - "Pandemic Biosphere, Zoonotic Perils and Bio-Centric Literary Discourse" by Dr. Dinesh Kumar, Associate Professor, V.G. Vaze College, Mulund, Mumbai, and the second session - "Supernatural Horror Narratives and Troubled Spaces" by Dr. Christopher Scott of Utah Valley University, USA. The second day too had two sessions followed by a panel discussion of Research Scholars.

The third session of the conference was rendered by the distinguished Professor of Environmental Humanities, University of Idaho, Prof. Scott Slovic on the topic "Ecocriticism in the Time of Covid19: Why and How to Practice the Environmental Humanities during a Pandemic". The final session was by Dr. Prantik Bannerjee, Associate Professor, Hislop College, Nagpur on "Migrating Microbes, Travelling Bodies and Border Immunities in Pandemic Narratives".

Dr. Dinesh Kumar, Associate Professor, V.G. Vaze College, Mulund's plenary session, "Pandemic Biosphere, Zoonotic Perils and Bio-Centric Literary Discourse" set the tone of the Webinar by calling upon the "Biophilic energy" to tide over our present situation. The painstakingly exhaustive scholarly discourse of Dr. Nair explicated firstly the ironies and paradoxes that the present pandemic has thrown open to us. The human animal conflict versus the reconciliations brought about through human agency was the crux of the first part of his treatise. His second major concern with the "zoonotic peril" made him urge for an ardent need for a movement from anthropomorphism to zoophilism, a need to move away from 'Speciesism'. He issued a clarion call for the need of recognition that this is the time to redefine 'bios' and make it inclusive for the non-human species. Stressing upon the "Aesthetics of Care" and taking cue from Ted Hughes, whom Heaney calls the "shaman of the tribe", Dr. Nair made an impassioned plea for the need for the co-evolution of culture and nature. For him, Literature and human behavior, being "oximeters" will help keep in check and maintain a fruitful "civilizational dialogue" of our future where the crossed-out non-human entities will not be relegated to the sidelines of history and culture.

and plenary session by Dr. Christopher Scott of Utah Valley University, USA on "Supernatural Horror Narratives and Troubled Spaces" wove a tapestry of the various gothic narratives from Algernon Blackwood's "Lost Valley" and "The Transfer" to Silent Spring, an environmental science narrative by Rachel Carson documenting the adverse environmental effects caused by the indiscriminate use of pesticides; and the film The Black Lagoon, to draw home the point that the troubled spaces in supernatural landscapes need to be understood as harbingers that remind the human kind of their mortality. He explicated how the reckless damage that the human kind has wrought upon the biomass, utterly disregarding its sanctity, is animated against the human kind in troubled spaces such as Mononoke the Japanese anime. Dr. Scott lamented the fact that humans have forgotten the visceral connections of the human with the non human and therefore the 'troubled spaces' of the supernatural, exhibiting their wrath, turn threateningly upon the human lot. Dr. Scott read Biblical intertextuality in almost all these "troubled spaces" exemplifying how the locus of sanctity, the garden of Eden – nature in its ultimate pristine form – is devastated through the 'Fall - human transgression. Dr. Scott's declaration that the world does not belong to the 'fallen' human kind is pertinent. He made an earnest imploration that protecting and preserving what remains of the lost Eden is crucial at this juncture.

Day two had two Plenary Sessions. One of the pioneers in the field of eco-criticism, world-renowned environmentalist Prof. Scott Slovic, was the resource person. He carries an enormous experience related to environmental issues. Prof. Scott is the Founding President of the Association for the Study of Literature and Environment (ASLE) from 1992-1995. He is currently serving as a distinguished professor of Environmental Humanities at University of Idaho, USA. His discourse on "Ecocriticism in the Time of Covid19: Why and How to Practice the Environmental Humanities during a Pandemic" was well received by the participants. Prof. Slovic spoke on trends in English literary studies and the subtopic of Ecocriticism bringing references from his article published on a Swedish website Bifrostonline titled 'COVID World, COVID Mind'. He referred to another article of his, pertaining to the environmental humanities and responses to the pandemic, recommending specific actions from scholars and others in the society. He deliberated on other aspects of the pandemic like lockdown economy, marginalization, cruelty to other species, empirical Ecocriticism and digital humanities. He expressed his concern over the rapid decline in sensitivity of the human being towards other humans, animals and environment. He concluded his discourse on a positive note that environmentalists and scholars are stepping out and urging the international community to change our way of living and try to make the world a better and more sustainable place.

The second resource person for day two was Dr. Prantik Bannerjee, Associate Professor, Hislop College, Nagpur. His areas of interest are cultural studies, Film theory, Post-Colonial Studies, Trauma Theory, Disability Studies. He is a poet and a short story writer. He delivered his discourse on "Migrating Microbes, Travelling Bodies and Border Immunities in Pandemic narratives" which was highly appreciated by the participants. He termed the current situation caused due to Covid19 as 'Culture of Pandemonium'. He explained the term pandemic narrative and illustrated it with some popular examples from Hollywood movies and fictions. He analyzed the film Contagion in the light of current situation. He spoke how films and fictions are influential transmitters in our circuit of culture, affect our beliefs, values, social behaviour. In his analysis of pandemic narratives, he deliberated upon various aspects such as migration of bodies and migration of microbes, Microbe Migrant: Unfortunate victim or Sociopath Super Spreader? Geography of diseases, topography of moral pollution, Border immunities and Border Promiscuity, border crossings and migration of colonial diseases. He discussed about how the west looks at the east and, in the process, stigmatizing the lesser powerful non-wester migrants as carriers of various contagious diseases. He referred to movies such as Typhoid Mary, The Most Dangerous Woman in America, Terrible Typhoid Mary and books such as Silent Travelers: Germs, Genes, and the Immigrant Menace by Alan Kraut. He coined the term Medicalized Nativism. Michael Crichton's The Andromeda Strain and The Andromeda Evolution, Richard Preston's The Hot Zone and Barbara Culliton's Emerging Viruses, Emerging Threats. Through pandemic narratives, he touched upon issues such as race, neo-colonialism, the problematic aspects of globalization and the trans-national migration. He also named few emerging areas of research in literature such as pandemic literary studies, migration, disease and trauma literature.

The Web conference ended with the Research Scholar's Panel Discussion moderated by Dr Nilakshi Roy, Associate Professor and Head of the Department of English, V.G. Vaze College, Mulund, Mumbai. The panel comprised of six research scholars - Dr. Savita Sukumar Assistant Professor, G. M. Momin Women's College, Alumnus, Smt. C.H.M. Research Centre; Ms. Micky Barua, Research Scholar, Smt.
